Cambodia

Rural communities experiencing decreasing agricultural productivity because of erratic rainfalls due to climate change and they are relying on forest ecosystems for food and income.

Objective: ecoagriculture to achieve climate resilience of communities living in community protected areas. 24,000 people benefitted from the ecoagriculture interventions (124 water points constructed; 170,000 fruit trees distributed; 223,500 indigenous tree species planted in degraded areas; 139 CPA management committees trained on CCA; 3 community-managed nurseries established and produced seedlings).
